DR. BROUWER FIXED POISON DOSE FOR WIFE, SAYS NURSE

Miss Lippincott Swears Physician when Asked for Morphine Gave Her Deadly Poison to Quiet Convulsions of Patient.

(Special to The Evening World.)

TOMS RIVER, N. J., Oct. 10.—Heavy blows were dealt on both sides in the case of Dr. Frank Brouwer, charged with wife murder for

Nurse Una Dudley, the first to cast suspicion upon Dr. Brouwer, and who told yesterday of the sufferings of the dying woman, was tangled up on cross-examination and her evidence practically nullified. Then another nurse came to the front as the star witness. She is Miss May T. Lippincott, who succeeded Miss Dudley on the case. She swore positively that she saw Dr. Brouwer prepare an injection of strychnine instead of morphine for his wife. She threw this away and used morphine.

While the witness wasn't quite sure strychnine was used, she was sure the doctor did not use the bottle labelled morphia.

A hard blow to the State's case was the ruling of the court prevent-Ing Norse Dudley from telling of a quarrel between Dr. Brouwer and his wife in which the dying woman charged her husband with trying to poison her because he loved another, Stella McClenahan.
